

The Haimesian Core Set

Unified Core Document (Rebuilt Edition v2)

All Core Arguments in One Continuous System

Preface

This document reconstructs the Haimesian Core Set into a single unified work. It serves as an entry point into a system designed to improve clarity, reduce suffering, and guide ethical decision-making.

Each principle connects to the others, forming a coherent philosophical architecture.

I. The Meaning Principle

To love anything is to experience the meaning of life itself.

Meaning is not discovered abstractly but emerges through engagement. Love is participation in meaning.

II. The Resolution of Paradox

There are no true paradoxes; every paradox is resolvable through proper analysis.

Apparent contradiction reflects incomplete understanding.

III. The Nature of Reality

Reality is structured and purposeful.

Challenge exists not as randomness but as opportunity for growth.

IV. The Human Condition

Humans exist between suffering and growth.

Consciousness allows transformation beyond reaction.

V. The Double Response to Evil

The correct response to harm is twofold: external good and internal purification.

Scriptural foundation:

"If your enemy is hungry, feed him; if he is thirsty, give him something to drink. In doing this, you will heap burning coals on his head." (Romans 12:20)

"Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you." (Matthew 5:44)

These teachings are not separate. They form a unified system.

Externally, one responds with good. This creates moral contrast and can produce internal conviction in the wrongdoer — what is described metaphorically as 'burning coals.'

Internally, one removes hatred and actively desires the good of the other through prayer.

Together, these break the cycle of harm both in the world and within the self.

VI. Mercy and Consequence

Forgiveness and accountability operate on different layers.

A person may be forgiven internally while still facing external consequences.

Mercy addresses the heart; consequence addresses the damage.

VII. The Non-Defeating Posture

A sustainable worldview must survive doubt.

This posture avoids both blind belief and destructive skepticism.

VIII. Objective Goodness (Michael's Sword)

Goodness is not merely subjective preference.

It aligns with the nature and flourishing of beings.

IX. The Ethics of Power

Power amplifies responsibility.

Greater influence requires greater ethical restraint.

X. The Global Voice

No voice is too small.

Systems improve when they include all perspectives.

XI. System Integration

These principles form a unified system.

Meaning, truth, ethics, and reality reinforce each other.

Final Insight

Responding unconsciously allows reality to shape you.

Responding with intention allows you to shape reality.
